SOCIETY READY TO GREET SIR HORSE NEXT WEEK

Boxes and Parking Spaces to Be Filled With Members of Smart Set From

Society is looking forward to its first important event in the opening of the 20th annual exhibition of the Bryn Mawr Horse Show Association, which marks the autumnal social season for Philadelphia. The event will begin on the Polo Grounds at Bryn Mawr on Monday and will continue through the week. An especially interesting accompanying feature of the exhibit will be the first annual Bryn Mawr Hound Show, which begins Tuesday and extends through four days. This side event is the first exhibition especially for fox hounds and beagles ever held in this country and is attracting national attention among huntsmen. Hunt clubs from Massachusetts, Vermont, New York, Virginia and Maryland have entered their packs.

Since 1910 the horse show has extended through five days, but this year the exhibit has been extended a day and 25 new classes have been added. Heavy draft horses are being exhibited for the first time at Bryn Mawr. Addition of this class is in recognition of the efforts of landowners in suburban Philadelphia to improve the breeds of this useful type of horseflesh.

beginning primarily an exhibition of hunting horses. The showing of harness horses, saddle horses, hackneys, ponies and draft horses has always been regarded by the patrons of the exhibit as of secondary importance, although keen contests always develop among these entries. #### WHAT MILADY WEARS

Smart gowns in tailored style and many with the fluffy trimmings so dear to the feminine heart are being worn this season. As it has been for the last two or three years, almost any kind of gown is worn for almost any kind of an occasion, and society maids and matrons are by no means adverse to showing how they have chosen all varieties for their fall and winter wardrobes.

Mrs. J. Theodore Marshall, whose clothes are cently in a navy blue serge suit that was exceedingly smart. The coat was in the new redingote style, quite long and worn over a short, scant skirt. Mrs. Marshall's hat was of navy blue taffets, edged with a narrow rim of white.

Mrs. Joseph E. Widener wears a becoming model of cream-white broadcloth, the skirt draped over an underskirt of lace. With this Mrs. Widener wears a large flat-brimmed black velvet hat trimmed with black algrettes. The costume is unrelieved by any touch of color except for the girdle of dull pink. Mrs. Gilbert Harvey, who wears her clothes extremely well, was seen in a white serge tailleur cut on simple lines and worn with a close-fitting little black and white sailor hat. Miss Marguerite Caperton, daughter of Admiral and Mrs. William Caperton, is wearing a smart little frock of sheer batiste with a purple figure and a girdle of satin to match.

With this costume she wears a jaunty little purple hat. For shopping Miss Linda Baker has chosen a smart little trotteur of navy blue crepe. The skirt is full over the hips and is topped by a short jacket, Eton in effect, with a rolling collar and pipings of white crope do chine. With this Miss Baker wears a medium-sised hat of dark blue with a rather flat crown. Mrs. Warner Earnshaw wears a striking skirt has a straight timic, while the waist is made of figured creps, the figures being in shades of dull red and mustard color. Soft lace forms the yest and collar. A small dultrde hat, trimmed with two quills, gives an aidded touch to this gown. Miss Caroline Franklin, of Lancaster, whose engagement to Stanley Smith, of this city, was recently announced, has selected a good-looking
